Strike Might Be Terminated With New Agreement

With moderate effects of the strike on local industry, the Teamsters union and trucking companies are getting ready to roll again, ending a nationwide shutdown. A tentative contract agreement that reportedly meets President Carter's anti-inflation guidelines has been reached.

"The strike and defensive shutdown (by the industry) are being terminated," chief federal mediator Wayne L. Horvitz said shortly before midnight Tuesday as he announced a settlement in the 10-day work stoppage.

"Procedures for return to work will be made within 24 hours," he said.

The new package would provide increases in wages, cost-of-living and fringe benefits estimated at 26 to 30 percent over three years.

The Murray Division of the Tappan Co. has not been greatly affected by the strike, according to Jerry Smith, traffic coordinator. He said that Tappan mostly uses its own trucks. However, some runs could not be made by company trucks, he added.

The Fisher-Price Toys Division of the Quaker Oats Co. could be hurt if the strike were to continue for a few more weeks, John Warren, personnel manager of the plant, said.

He commented that the company has not been affected at this time because Fisher-Price and Quaker Oats each have their own truck service. But, he added that a truckload of toy parts received Tuesday was shipped by a Quaker Oats vehicle.

Shelley Frenett, payroll supervisor at Calloway Manufacturing Co., stated that that company has been renting U-Haul trucks for the last four weeks in order to make pick-ups and deliveries.

Fitts Block and Ready Mix Inc. has not been affected, according to George Weeks, office clerk. He said that the company primarily deals with private haulers.

Larry Robinson of the Interstate Filter and Supply Co., a division of Murray Fabrics Inc., said that the filter company has suffered in both incoming and outgoing business. Most of the company's business is out of state, he added. However, he said no drastic changes would be made unless the strike were to continue for three or four more weeks.

No one was available for comment at the Vanderbilt Chemical Corp.

Teamsters union president Frank Fitzsimmons said he would recommend ratification of the contract by the 300,000-member rank and file covered by the pact. "I'm sure they'll be satisfied with this agreement; at least I hope so," he said.

The union said it would take four to six weeks to complete the ratification vote.

The two sides reached their agreement under the prodding of federal mediators in a final marathon round of bargaining that stretched over two days.

The settlement spelled an end to the longest industrywide shutdown in history, a dispute that forced mass layoffs in the auto industry but otherwise caused little damage to the nation's economy.

The dispute began at midnight March 31, when the two sides failed to meet a deadline for agreeing to a new contract. The Teamsters launched strikes against 73 companies, and Trucking Management Inc., the industry bargaining arm that represents about 500 firms, responded with a lockout that prevented union members from working at any of their companies.

Sources, who asked not to be identified, say the tentative settlement gives Teamsters wage increases of $1.50 an hour over three years, plus semi-annual cost-of-living adjustments. Increased fringe benefits are worth another 75 cents an hour, the sources said.

TRUCKS — Several Murray and Calloway County businesses have been touched by the recent strike by the Teamsters union and trucking companies. These trucks, owned by Tappan and located at the plant loading dock, have enabled the company to continue business.

Deficit To Remain After Park Grant

By DEBBIE N. LEE
Staff Reporter

Gary Hohman, parks director, told members of the Murray-Calloway County Parks Board Tuesday night that there will be a $6,000 deficit after the completion of a $35,429 matching grant for construction work in the park.

The grant, which was initially applied for in 1977, provides for fencing of four ball parks, replacement of four park shelters, the addition of eight sections of bleachers and the addition of four basketball goals.

The parks director stated that he was presently working with the construction committee on the project and on methods to finance the additional $6,000.

In other business, the board set hours for the park swimming pool for the Murray-Calloway County Swim Team, the Red Cross Learn-To-Swim program and the public.

The swim team will have use of the large pool from 8 to 10 a.m. during its seven-week season of June and July. The Learn-To-Swim program will use the small pool from 8 to 10 a.m., both pools from 10 a.m. to noon, and both pools from 8 to 10 p.m.

The pool will be open to the public from noon to 8 p.m. These hours are the same as were allotted to the groups last year.

The park board secretary will write letters to the program directors of both organizations requesting that schedules for the groups be coordinated through the directors in order for both groups to have full utilization of the pools.

Hohman was authorized by the board to advertise for season passes for the pool. The fees will be $20 for a single season pass and $45 for a family season pass if purchased prior to the pool opening. Prices will be $25 and $50 if bought after the opening of the pool.

The board was notified of the senior citizens' request for shuffleboard in the park. The $400 that was allotted for the group's use when the park was built will be used for the construction.

At Least 49 Dead After Tornado Strikes

By The Associated Press

Tornadoes smashed into four communities in North Texas and Oklahoma, sucking up people and property, tossing cars about and leveling homes and businesses. Authorities said at least 49 persons were killed and more than 800 were injured.

In Wichita Falls, site of the worst damage, National Guard troops patrolled debris-strewn streets today to ward off any looters who might want to take advantage of the disaster that struck Tuesday afternoon.

Vandals smashed plate glass windows in downtown stores and scooped up booty after a twister tore through the city of 96,000. One Red Cross worker reported seeing armed homeowners guarding damaged homes.

In Lawton, Okla., where at least three died in a twister, Gov. George Nigh activated 100 National Guard troops to aid in search and rescue efforts and police patrols. There were reports of looting there, too, but no arrests.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements, who activated 150 National Guardsmen in Wichita Falls, was to tour the stricken areas today.

"As the storm started, you could see the clouds being sucked into the center of the storm — the debris and huge pieces of house roofs, and tree limbs," said Wichita Falls Record-News reporter Rocky Scott, who watched the tornado from the county courthouse.

"All of a sudden there was a tremendous roar, and the storm appeared to move very quickly. It seemed like it lasted about five or six minutes and it looked like a huge snow cone."

The first major twister at 3:50 p.m. killed at least 12 persons and injured more than 60 in Vernon, a town of 11,500 about 75 miles northwest of Wichita Falls. "It looks like we have been bombed," one resident there said. The National Guard armory was blown down.

Two hours later, Wichita Falls, was hit, with the path of destruction eight miles long and up to 1½ miles wide. Red Cross officials said at least 33 were killed and more than 700 injured — many of them seriously enough to require surgery. About 2,000 homes were destroyed or seriously damaged and two shopping centers were heavily damaged.

"The only thing left of my house is the closet I was lying in," said one woman, who asked not to be identified. "I got so scared I just laid there and prayed. I've been through five hurricanes, but hurricanes are nothing compared to this. Take me back to hurricanes."

Some of those injured in Vernon had been taken to Wichita Falls hospitals. "We were taking injured in from Vernon when this one hit here," said Dr. Jack Lee, medical coordinator for the Red Cross in Wichita Falls.

Another tornado later struck Harrold, a small town nine miles west of Vernon, killing one person.

Across the Red River in Oklahoma, a twister killed at least three persons and injured at least 70 in Lawton. "The destruction is going to be in the millions of dollars. We got hit hard," said Police Capt. Bob Edmonson.

MSU Given Federal Research Grant To Assist Rural Schools

Murray State University has been awarded a $140,000 federal grant for 1979-80 for research designed to assist rural school systems in meeting the needs of handicapped students.

Funded by the U.S. Bureau of Education for the Handicapped, the project of the Center for Innovation and Development (CID) at Murray State is based on the findings of a 1978-79 CID rural education study supported by a $50,000 federal grant.

Involved in the project are Dr. Doris Helge, CID director, as project director and Dr. John Merbler and John Boltz. Known as the Personnel Preparation Needs for Creative Use of Scarce Resources in Rural School Systems project, the study is intended to aid school districts in determining what kind of strategies work best in specific rural environments.

While noting that 75 percent of the school districts in the U.S. are classified as rural, Dr. Helge pointed out that a wide variation exists in available professional and specialized resources, in geographic and transportation barriers, and in general life styles in those areas.

She said the thrust of the study is to address the needs of rural school systems attempting to implement the Education of All Handicapped Children's Act, Public Law 94-142.

The study, which includes retraining of educators to provide better delivery of services for handicapped students, will be done in three phases:

— Development of profile strategies to determine which method of delivery of services is most appropriate for particular rural subcultures.

— Development of interdisciplinary models of personnel preparation for the most effective and efficient service delivery. These models will be made available to state education agencies and to colleges and universities across the country.

— Submission of findings to the Bureau of Education for the Handicapped to assist that agency in making a determination about which pre-service should be funded.

The grant raises to more than $1 million the amount of money awarded for projects proposed by or coordinated through the CID since 1977.

26 Packets Still Outstanding

Drive Funds Announced

With 26 of the worker packets still outstanding, the Calloway County chapter of the American Red Cross has collected $8,766.90 of the March fund drive goal of $11,124, according to Dr. Jack Rose, drive chairman.

The outstanding packets total more than one-fourth of all the packets given out, Rose said at the quarterly Red Cross meeting held Tuesday at the Calloway County Public Library.

Rose emphasized that money is needed to keep the Red Cross office open. Funds are used for local Red Cross activities, veterans assistance and disaster victims.

Other reports were given by Mrs. Lucy Wright, newly appointed executive secretary of the local chapter.

Retired Judge Needed To Hear Two Sides Of Tobacco Argument

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A chancellor says he will try to find a retired state judge to hear arguments by two factions suing each other for control of a tobacco growers' association.

Chancellor Alex Darnell said Tuesday he was stepping down because he has worked with two of the defendants, Clarksville lawyers Thomas Bateman and Paul Welker.

"It would be poor judgment," he said. "I would be ill at ease to try them."

Darnell said he was leaving today for a state judges' conference and would try to find a retired judge to take the case. A hearing is scheduled April 20.

The two groups are part of the Eastern Dark Fired Tobacco Growers Association, headquartered in Springfield for 11 districts in Tennessee and Kentucky. The factions have filed suits in Springfield.

Led by president Marvis Ellis, growers' association officials elected last August are challenging the validity of a Feb. 15 election at Hopkinsville, Ky., that installed new officers.

A group led by the board of directors installed in the February election asks that the officers elected last August show what authority would entitle them to the positions.

William Deatherage Jr., Hopkinsville lawyer representing the officers elected last August, said state courts in Kentucky and Tennessee have restrained seven directors on the new board from conducting association business pending court hearings. The officers Deatherage is representing have filed related suits in U.S. District Court at Paducah, Ky., and Circuit Court in Hopkinsville.

Bateman, representing the opposing group, said the suit filed in Paducah was dismissed on the defendants' motion.

He said, however, the plaintiffs have appealed to the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

Calloway School Board Changes Meeting To Monday

Dr. Rose said the Monday meeting will be at 7 p.m. in the board office on College Farm Road, next to the Calloway County High School.

Ron Greene, who returned to his Murray State University alma mater as the head basketball coach in the spring of 1978, will be the speaker at the school's annual Alumni Association banquet on Saturday evening, April 28.

Ron Greene

His address will be the highlight of the banquet to begin at 6:30 p.m. (CST) in the Student Center. The program will

His wife, the former Allene Hodge Reidland, also earned the B.S. degree in 1962.

Prior to accepting the coaching duties at Murray State, Greene had served as head coach at Loyola of New Orleans, the University of New Orleans, and Mississippi State University. His teams have compiled a record of 192-120 in 12 years.

District Judge Sid Easley of Murray, president of the Alumni Association, will introduce Greene and preside during the banquet program before relinquishing the gavel to a new president, Mike Peek of Nashville, formerly of Benton, at its conclusion.

A president-elect, vice-president, and five new representatives to the Alumni Council will also take office during installation ceremonies.

HEALTH

Unconvinced alcoholic

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am worried about my husband. He is a constant beer drinker. He drinks it like it was water. He smokes two packs of cigarettes daily. He used to drink coffee upon rising in the morning and now it's only one cup of coffee and right away he switches to beer. It's between 8 to 12 cans a day. Never less than six and sometimes many more.

In the morning when he drives to work, he starts in coughing real hard and ends up vomiting a whole lot of liquid. He won't see a doctor. I've begged him to go to one but he won't. He says it's from his sinus drainage into his throat. Do you think all of that beer is good for him? Do you think he is an alcoholic? What should I do?

DEAR READER—If your description is even halfway correct, your husband is an alcoholic. One of the awful aspects about alcoholism is that a number of them have to hit rock bottom and have severe medical complications of total complete financial collapse before they're willing to do anything for themselves. The picture is complicated by the point that many people with alcohol problems have complete denial of illness. They think there's nothing wrong with them when, in fact, they're getting worse every day.

In our free society, it's difficult to make people do things against their will, even when it's for their own good. The alcohol and cigarette habit are two outstanding examples. The combination of these two habits represents an enormous financial load to our society.

It's sometimes said that we get a lot of taxes from these habits and they help to support our society. That's totally false. The combined habits create medical expenses which far exceed any taxes that are obtained from these products. Society as a whole has to pay for it in the form of increased insurance costs as well as providing direct medical support for those who can no longer afford it.

Well, what can you do about it? I'm sending you The Health Letter number 1, 4, Alcohol, Whiskey, Gin, Vodka, Rum, Wine, Beer to give you more information on what alcohol does to the body. It might help you some in coping with your husband's problem. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

In addition to being informed you've got to enlist the help of whatever agencies are available to you locally to see if you can get your husband to do something for himself.

Look in the yellow pages of your telephone directory under alcoholism and see what centers and services are available to your community. If there are none because of the size of your community, get a telephone directory from the nearest large city that you might be able to utilize. These run the gamut from Alcoholics Anonymous to mental health clinics. Someone in one of these groups will be able to give you some pretty good advice as to what's possible to be achieved in your husband's case.

Sometimes a spouse has to be very firm and at some point just refuse to have to live with such a problem when the other individual refuses to do anything about it. That's tough to do with a loved one but sometimes it's the only solution that's left.

Know Kentucky...

Special Items And Events Of State Now In Booklet

By Helen Price Stacy

"...to know Kentucky better is to love Kentucky more." This is part of a sentence from a 16-page booklet published several years ago by Ashland Oil Co. There is no date in the red-and-white cover collection of facts about the bluegrass state, but it was in the days of radio and was based on the popular "Romance of Kentucky Quiz Show" radio programs.

KNOW YOUR KENTUCKY!

The booklet contains questions and answers about Kentucky history, sports, geography, travel, literature, prominent persons, music, laws, government and other subjects. Many of the answers would not be correct today since parkways and interstate highways have shortened travel distances, trains have been discontinued and road changes made.

In the geography section, names of cities in states bordering Kentucky were given and the person answering was to name the Kentucky city "just across the river." The river was the Ohio. Can you name the city across the Ohio from Evansville, Indiana? New Albany,

Indiana? Ironton, Ohio? Aberdeen, Ohio? Brookport, Illinois? Jeffersonville, Indiana? (Answers at the end of question section)

This question reveals a clue as to when the booklet was published. "This current best seller contains some of the facts and some fancies about the dramatic Sharp; Beauchamp murder trial of the 1820s."

What is the name of the story and who wrote it about a man who gave all he could to his community—the job of burying the dead in time of epidemic?

Who wrote "The Belled Buzzard" and "Words and Music"? Who wrote "Black Is My True Love's Hair" and "The Great Meadow"? Who wrote "The Thread That Runs So True" and "Hie to the Hunters"? Who wrote "World Enough and Time" and "Night Rider"? Who wrote "Hunter's Horn" and "Mountain Path"?

What town is known as the Golden Buckle on the Burley Belt? What city is known as the Gateway to the South? Henderson is on the Ohio but never in it; Paducah is the capital of western Kentucky, and Glasgow is the Biggest Little City in Kentucky.

Napoleon's tomb is reproduced atop the Capitol in Frankfort; Man O'War was known as "Big Red"; Elmdorf, Mereworth and Walnut Hall are names of horse farms.

Cities and towns in the musical selections are Buffalo and LaRue County; Paris in Bourbon; Praise in Pike; Warsaw in Gallatin; Martha in Lawrence; Mary in Wolfe, and Cecilia in Hardin.

The booklet is fascinating with its questions and games. An update would be useful today. Such a booklet could help children pass time on long trips and also be educational.

For instance, who are these people: Pewee; Hoot; The Baron; Oom Paul; Wah Wah; Tiny; Bana Nose; Uncle Ed; Bo; Shipwreck, and Bib and Little Clug?

Second-Hand Love Simply Won't Wear

DEAR ABBY: Would you please say something in your column about girls who get involved with married men? My 23-year-old daughter has entered into such a relationship. The man is handsome, successful and charming, but can offer her nothing but a sleazy after-hours office romance. (The same old story: his marriage is "empty and loveless" but he can't give up his children.)

My daughter is pretty, intelligent and completely devoted to this man. (She works for him.) It hurts me to see her waste her best years in a hopeless relationship.

Since my information about this affair is confidential, I can't approach my daughter with warnings and "motherly advice."

Perhaps a word from you might help. She reads your column faithfully and believes in you.

DEPENDING ON YOU

DEAR DEPENDING: A "word" from me isn't likely to help much. What your daughter needs is a word from someone who has been down that road and found that it usually leads to heartbreak alley. If she has read me "faithfully," she will have seen many such letters.

An involvement with a married man is painful, degrading and hopeless at best. But some women have to learn the hard way.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think girls who wear glasses come on as sexy as girls who don't?

G. IN PERRY, IOWA

DEAR G.: It depends on their frames.

DEAR ABBY: After many years of marriage my husband began to get careless about his personal hygiene. He'd forget to use a deodorant, or his toothbrush, work hard all day, then join me in bed without showering. He was physically very unattractive.

I didn't nag or scold him. Instead I became the aggressor. I'd slip a cute little poem to him which read something like this:

"Brush your teeth and take a shower
And meet me in the bedroom in half an hour!"
Or, after dinner, I'd lay out his good pajamas and tell him I just HAD to have him, and he'd better hurry up and shower and get to bed before I got out of the mood!

Let me tell you, it worked!
If only women would realize how much more they can accomplish with a little humor and sweet words. Also, my little game has made a big difference in our marriage.

Abby. Now sometimes he even writes ME a note. Pass this along.

"TIGER WOMAN" (his name for me)

DEAR ABBY: Like many others, I never thought I would have to write to you, but something so offended my sensibilities that I felt compelled to write for your opinion.

What do you think of a 4-year-old child who chews tobacco? His parents think it's cute. The little boy always carries a plug of tobacco and chews and spits just like a little old man.

When I told his parents that it could damage the child's health, they laughed and said, "He doesn't smoke it, so it's not harmful."

Can your experts come up with any facts about the possible dangers of chewing tobacco? Especially to a 4-year-old? Maybe they will listen to you.

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: The American Cancer Society informs me that there is evidence that chewing tobacco can cause cancer of the lips, tongue, mouth or throat. The parents of that child should be hauled into court for child abuse!

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Letters To The Editor

In Response To Letter

Dear Editor:

I would like to comment on the letter of the Honorable Mayor, Mr. Melvin Henley, printed in your paper under date of March 22, 1979.

I feel quite sure that most adults know that an elected official cannot vote himself an increase in salary during the tenure of time he was elected to serve but would take effect the next time he or anyone was elected to fill the vacancy.

The Mayor also commented that the news commentary of which I referred was buried fairly deep and could only be found by extremely close examination. Such a remark makes a person think the Mayor does not appreciate close examination of his operations.

Mr. Mayor, if you will recall you ask me for my opinion of your running for mayor in the Martins Chapel Church and I replied to you to first run for council and become familiar with the operation of the city and then run for Mayor. You also told me it would cut your salary some but you did not know at that time how much it would cut it.

Now as to the city furnishing you an automobile which had over 100,000 miles on the odometer and price paid for it was $100. How lucky you are to have the city furnish you a car of any description, so you should feel honored. The Mayor who served 16 years (4 years previous) to your being elected was not furnished a car of any description. The $12,000 limousine for the mayor of Paducah, to ride in would have gone a long way towards cleaning up garbage scattered in their city.

I have had some experience in supervising employees (approximately 200 ladies and men. Thirty five of women were head shaven before leaving Germany and what a sight to be seen. I only had one interpreter to work between us). In my position I evaluated each person's workmanship, their interest in operating the machines assigned to each and most of all their cooperation, in adjustment of wages paid to them. If none of these qualifications existed there was no increases in wages and when work slowed down, they were the first to be eliminated temporarily (but not fired).

In my working with a friend (of more than 44 years) I found him to be deeply concerned about being a councilman. Lots of morning's you could find him traveling the streets looking for things that needed repair or cleaning up. He did this before the time of opening his business. I personally feel that if all council members and the Mayor had worked as hard trying to uplift the city of Murray, it would be a city in which most any one would like to live.

I do not intend to criticize destructively, but constructively, only. The mistake the council and mayors' had made in the past was to not adjust their salaries according as the work load became greater. If done in this way, I doubt very seriously if there would have been any complaint, provided you had the money with which to do so.

After reading the report of the Paducah Sun staff writer, Steve Winfield, it appears to me that the Mayor and some council member lost control of themselves according to the report of the way they talked and acted.

To my knowledge the Honorable George Hart was the last mayor that considered it an honor to serve as mayor and when he was paid, endorsed the check back to the city. That is not hear say. He told me and I questioned his lovely wife as to my being correct. She replied I was correct. I have known councilmen who did likewise.

I don't think I would put my name on the ballot if I felt that $30 per month was nothing as one council member does. It would not surprise me if they cut it (council members pay) to nothing then, Henley said.

I agree that there is a law against paying council members according to the number of meetings. In that same law it states a limit as to how much they can be paid.

I neither believe that our councilmen should consider it an insult to be representing the city in a manner which they surely knew which is considered an honorary way of helping the growth and improvement of our city in which I am very proud to have lived sixty (60) of my seventy-three years of life.

I have lived in larger cities and I would not give up MURRAY AS MY HOME for any of them.

Respectfully submitted,
Waldie H. Ellis
Murray, Ky.

National Airport Has Become Beggar's Mecca

SENATOR ROBERT MORGAN (N.C.) "... It is estimated that 60,000 people pass through National's two terminals every day. These people are from all over the country and from all parts of the world. They are traveling for education or pleasure, or other private reasons. Many are arriving in Washington for the first time and receiving their first impression of this Nation's Capital. They include students, military servicemen and senior citizens.

"National Airport has become a beggar's mecca in the last 4 years with sometimes as many as a half-dozen different organizations vigorously soliciting donations there in a single day. Millions of dollars have passed hands. Some of the beggars use cleverness and guile; and some use threats and insults.

"On numerous occasions I have personally witnessed the harassment techniques of one of the groups of beggars known as Ours, Inc., I, too have personally experienced their

Resolution

Whereas,

The Woodmen of the World Life Insurance, since its founding and establishment, and for all its years of existence, has championed and exemplified the Democratic concept of government; and

Whereas, This Fraternal benefit Society has sought to encourage good citizenship, true patriotism and love for country, by various programs such as American History awards, markers at places of historic interest, presentation of Kentucky State and United States flags and flag poles, encouraging Boy and Girl Scouts in patriotic programs, and generally cultivating a sense of fraternal, neighborly, and civic concern; and

Whereas, The operations of the Woodmen of the World have demonstrated the combination of sharing benevolent and fraternal services with sound and substantial business management, so as to undergird the financial and social stability of a free, political, and commercial economy; and

Statistics from Frankfort, Kentucky (the Capitol) indicate that in the last primary election, only 9.7 percent voted and in the last general election, only 33.4 percent voted; thus, indicating a potential, political, and patriotic apathy that could seriously undermine the strength of our country in its pattern of freedom.

Now Be It Therefore Resolved, First: that this Jurisdiction of Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Society in Kentucky duly represented by delegates from various units, here assembled in Convention in Louisville, Kentucky, on this April 7, 1979, go on record as urging every member to vote, and to be personally active in his or her own community to encourage all other qualified voters to exercise their Sacred right of suffrage and in a free Democracy in our beloved country.

Second: that a copy of this resolution be spread upon the permanent minutes of the proceedings of this Convention assembled, a copy to be sent to Honorable Nick T. Newberry, president of this Society for his examination toward approval or modification, and verbal abuse, and no policeman could be found to stop it. The Ours, Inc., people use taunts, insults, demands, and accusations of racism. They are deliberately loud, (even shouting) so as to draw attention, humiliation and embarrassment to their prey. They occasionally push, shove or grab them.

Finally: that a copy be made available to Sovereign George Owen, executive vice president for his discretion in transmitting to the Society's Fraternal Committee as a pattern for action on a National scale throughout other and all Jurisdictions of the Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Society.

"Even since these remarks were prepared, they have grabbed my secretary by her arm as she tried to go through the airport.

"The language is abrasive and obnoxious. (They) chart the course of movement of their victim and maneuver themselves directly in the pathway. If the victim tries a diversionary route, they readjust their position so as to continue the blockade. Customarily a young woman at National Airport will then stand very close, and attempt to place some object in the victim's lapel. All of this precedes the pitch for a donation.

"The airport's ostensible reason for permitting this conduct is that it is protected by the first amendment — the free exercise of speech and religion. These are indeed cherished freedoms. But the Supreme Court has never held that first amendment freedoms are without limitations.

"If the FAA (Federal Aviation Administration) is incapable of devising reasonable controls, then legislation might be necessary, and I will urge that hearings be held by the Senate Commerce Committee."

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

Soliciting funds for a religion, at an airport, is not prohibited by law. But there is no excuse for harassment in the process.

Bible Thought

Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit, John 15:16.

This verse gives ample evidence of what we mean to Jesus Christ.

Funny, Funny World

New York — Dog owners glauced furtively about looking for lurking policemen, policemen lurked in bushes looking for law-breaking dogs, and the dogs themselves took the whole thing in stride as a tough, new canine litter law went into effect.

Those who don't heed the law face $25 tickets. If they ignore the tickets, the fine rises to $100.

One officer issued 13 tickets in Central Park between 6 a.m. and 9 a.m. Another, Frank Bruciale, described the "cat and mouse game" that occurred when he wrote his first dog ticket at 6:50 a.m. on the Lower East Side.

The Story Of Calloway County

1822-1976 By Dorothy and Kerby Jennings

Copyright, 1978

The barber shop quartet lingers on today, but not with the gusto it did in the old Woodruff. The male foursome that once clustered in front of Buel Stroud's Bon Ton Cafe on the west side of the square was supreme. Buel's Bon-Ton should not be confused with later Bonton cafes on Main Street operated at intervals by Orvil Simmons, Burgess Parker Jr., "Miss Lucy" Smith and others. Buel's quartet was fragmented from time to time with replacements, but it retained its superb capacity for melody with the help of Clyde Downs, Rudy Allbritten, Hamer Thomas, Elmo Hayes, Clyde Brooks, Taz Miller, Edgar Robertson, Gussie and Lubie Veal, Tom Banks, Tom Williams, and other town dandies. They would sing until midnight at which time the night watchman Elias Robertson would call a halt to the square serenade, long past the street lights had blinked out at 10 o'clock.

EARLY SQUARE DANCES

Merriment was not limited to theaters and barber shop quartets for the old court house was once the scene of fantastic square dancing, according to John Mc Meloan's recollections. Once each week square dances were held in addition to holidays with "Uncle Andy" Meloan fiddling the music. John Mc adds that the events occurred after prayer meetings on Wednesday nights and would continue until midnight. Be that as it was, with the coming of the Rev. Boyce Taylor to the Baptist Church, that was one worldly pursuit that rapidly bit the dust, never to be revived until late in this century.

The Covington House, a pretentious hotel for the times, was constructed at the corner of North 4th Street and Main in 1876. Sunday noon dinners were a feature that attracted the elite of the village, in addition to being a site for dancing before the building was removed from the square. The Covington House was moved north to a big vacant lot across from where the Ledger building now stands. Other uses of hotel after its removal included a kindergarten school conducted by Miss Eunice Oury and for professional offices until fire destroyed the place in 1906. The hotel's former site was the location of the present Catlin Building. The Cherry Hotel at the old Methodist Church antedates the Covington House.

In 1921, a telephone line between the United States and Cuba was opened by President Warren Harding.

In 1951, President Harry Truman relieved General Douglas MacArthur of his command in the Far East.

In 1961, France served notice it no longer would contribute men or money to United Nations military operations.

HEARTLINE

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 East Dayton Street, West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: I am 60 years old. I am the common-law wife of a man who will turn 65 this year and start drawing Social Security benefits. We have two children who are 12 and 13 years old. When my husband retires, will my children be eligible for Social Security benefits on their father's work record? — V.H.

They may be. In many states a child born of a common-law marriage may be recognized for inheritance purposes even if the state does not recognize the validity of the common-law marriage. If the child has inheritance rights with respect to his father and he is living with or receiving contributions from his father, he can receive dependent children's benefits.

Even if the child is not eligible under the applicable state law, there are other alternatives. If your common-law husband has been declared the father by a court action, or is ordered to pay support because he is the father or if he has acknowledged your children in writing, the children can qualify. In addition, if you have other evidence to show that he is the father of your children and he is living with or contributing to the support of the children, they can qualify for benefits on his earnings record. To be sure, contact your nearest Social Security office.

HEARTLINE: I am going to turn 65 very soon and I will be under Medicare. I have heard that a person is only covered for 90 lifetime days in the hospital under Medicare. Is this true? — J.T.

You are confusing your regular 90-day benefit with the 60-day lifetime reserve which was explained in a previous column. Under the regular 90-day benefit, you have up to 90 days of hospital coverage during one "benefit period." A benefit period begins when you go into the hospital and ends when you leave the hospital and are at home for at least 60 days. For example, if you go into the hospital for 25 days, then are released and have been at home for 60 days, your benefit period has ended and you will then be eligible for a new benefit period and 90 more days of coverage.

HEARTLINE: As a senior citizen, I am thoroughly confused regarding Social Security benefits for a husband and wife. I am receiving a Social Security check of my own. My wife has worked and paid into Social Security for over 25 years. She intends to apply for benefits at age 62 (1980). Will her Social Security benefits be less because I am receiving my own benefit? Will my benefits be recomputed? — R.E.

Your wife can apply for benefits at age 62 on her own work record and also on your work record. She will be awarded the highest benefit of the two, but not both. Whichever she receives, it will have no effect on your benefits and your benefit will have no effect on her benefits.

HEARTLINE: Does a widow or widower lose entitlement for life to VA benefits if he or she remarries? — T.J.

No. A widow or widower may reclaim eligibility for VA benefits if the remarriage is terminated by death, divorce or annulment.

Sulfur Dioxide Emissions Could Restrict West Ky. Coal Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sulfur dioxide emission standards under consideration by the Environmental Protection Agency could severely restrict use of western Kentucky coal, according to Sen. Wendell Ford,

D-Ky. "I'm extremely concerned that the EPA apparently changed course in mid-stream and now is actively considering more stringent standards than were originally proposed last December," Ford said Tuesday in a statement on the Senate floor.

"This development was totally unexpected and it now appears that the EPA is leaning toward mandating these standards without giving the public adequate opportunity to comprehend and comment on what the proposal will do," he said.

In another action Tuesday, Ford, introduced legislation to restructure the Tennessee Valley Authority's board of directors to guarantee that a majority on the board be residents of the seven states which the agency serves.

On the emission issue, Ford said his concern was over consideration of a standard that would restrict new power plants to a maximum sulfur dioxide emission of .55 pounds per million BTUs, compared with the current ceiling of 1.2 pounds. EPA is under a federal court order to publish the new emission regulations by June 1.

Ford said the National Coal Association has advised the EPA that under the .55-pound standard, "as much as 100 percent of the steam coal reserves of surveyed companies in western Kentucky would be foreclosed from the utility market. The impact on this part of my state would be devastating."

Ford said that in view of concern about over-reliance on imported oil, "I find it incredible that the administration is considering a regulation that would preclude billions of tons of secure and low-cost domestic coal reserves from major markets. "For every ton of coal that is kept out of the market, four barrels of imported oil are needed to replace that coal," Ford said.

Ford said his TVA bill would expand the membership from three to five and would require that three members at all times be residents of states which consume TVA power.

He also said such a requirement would serve as a safeguard that the people most affected by the TVA's actions have a voice in those decisions.

"The TVA's role in energy development can only be expected to grow in the years ahead," Ford said in a statement from his office. "The president already has indicated his desire to use TVA as a national energy demonstration agency, and this will have a profound effect on the users in the TVA service area," Ford said.

He said that if TVA is to be in a position to fulfill its new mandate without sacrificing its basic obligation to the people of the region, it has become "apparent to many of us from the valley that the times demand increased and more intense participation from the board of directors."

"I have serious doubts that a three-member board can give the proper and balanced representation that will be required in the years ahead," the senator added.

Wells, North 16th Street, Murray, has been selected for the 1979 Talent Roster of outstanding minority community college graduates, according to Joe Paul Case, associate director of The College Board. This was a result of his academic performance, Case said. Wells will graduate in May as a pre-law major at Sheridan College, Sheridan, Wyoming, where he is attending on a basketball scholarship. Railroad Safety Makes Little Progress In Ky.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Efforts to improve state regulation and enforcement of railroad safety apparently have made little progress in Kentucky during the past year, according to federal officials.

The number of railroad accidents in Kentucky involving hazardous materials increased last year from 31 to 46.

Roughly 900 persons had to be evacuated after 23 railcars carrying dangerous substances were involved in accidents and released materials, according to figures from the Federal Railroad Administration.

According to William F. Black, chief of the FRA's hazardous materials division, 110,000 to 120,000 railcars of dangerous substances moved through Kentucky and southern Indiana last year.

Information about the types of materials moving through the region was not available. Black estimated that roughly a quarter of the cars moving through the region either originate or terminate within the two states.

Federal officials monitor railroad reports on maintenance and safety. But generally, because of manpower shortages, federal inspectors rely primarily on railroad companies for direct inspections of equipment and track.

Racer Men Run Past UT-Martin

MARTIN, Tenn. — The Murray State men's tennis team swamped UT-Martin 9-0 Tuesday afternoon to run its record to 12-3.

Terje Persson stopped Skeet Prince 6-3, 6-4 at No. 1 singles; Chris Leonard defeated Danny Green 6-5, 6-3 at No. 2; Roger Berthiaume beat Chris Fesseden 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 at No. 3; Finn Swarting whipped Mike McCrimmon 6-4, 6-4 at No. 4; Mike Costigan bettered David Fitzsimmons 6-3, 6-1 at No. 5; and Steve Willie defeated Ben Turk 6-5, 6-4 at No. 6.

In doubles, Persson-Leonard whipped Prince-Fitzsimmons 6-1, 6-2 at No. 1; Swarting-Costigan defeated Green-Fesseden 6-3, 6-2 at No. 2; and Berthiaume-Willie edged McCrimmon-Turk 6-4, 6-3 at No. 3.

The Racers will continue their five-match road trip by playing at Louisville Friday and Western Kentucky Saturday.

Women Netters Decimate Pacers

Murray State players won four singles matches without the loss of a game in dumping UT-Martin 8-1 in women's tennis at the MSU tennis complex Tuesday afternoon. The victory was Murray's ninth in 10 tries.

Betsy Ritt at No. 1 singles, Lynn Martin at No. 2, Yvonne Utley at No. 4 and Becky Jones at No. 5 all won their matches 6-0, 6-0 for Murray.

Ritt topped Vicki Holder, Martin stopped Lisa Patterson, Utley whipped Kim Spangler and Jones ripped Teresa Roach. Ann Rens won at No. 3 for the Racers, beating Donna Abernathy 6-0, 6-2.

At No. 6 singles, Barbara Hennessey sustained Murray's only loss, falling 6-0, 3-6, 7-6.

In doubles, Ritt and Karen Weis whipped Holder and Sandy Buswell 6-1, 6-1 at No. 1; Martin-Rens beat Abernathy-Patterson 6-3, 6-0 at No. 2 and Utley-Jones stopped House-Gidden 6-0, 6-0.

Murray will compete in a triangular match against Memphis State and Mississippi at Memphis Saturday.

Dorm Clash Isn't A Help To Recruiting

The hubbub surrounding Murray State's plans to refurbish a portion of Clark Hall to house the basketball team couldn't have come at a more inopportune time in terms of recruiting.

Almost every coach will admit that this season — the recruiting one — is every bit as important as the season during the winter.

And with numerous schools competing for every talented player's skills, things that don't seem important to the outsider — like housing — become of great significance.

"Housing is important in the recruitment of good athletes," Dr. Marshall Gordon, vice-president for university services, said last week when the issue first arose. "I think it is less important in the recruitment of quality students."

Gordon, who oversees MSU athletics, went on to say that he didn't mean to imply that he felt athletes were more important than students, however.

Regardless of the quality of a university's academics, they rarely are enough to lure a talented athlete to a university. Most of the time, things

CARBONDALE, Ill. — Murray State dominated the sprint events to help a 79-48 blasting of Southern Illinois in a women's dual track meet Tuesday afternoon.

The Racers swept all three spots in the 100-meter hurdles and the 100- and 200-meter dashes. Betty Fox won the hurdle event in 14.73; Glenvira Williams won the 100 and the 200 in 12.42 and 25.71, respectively; and Cheryl Glore captured the 400-meter dash in 58.67.

Glenda Calabro won the 3000-meter run in 10:56.7 as the Racers took the top two spots in that event, and Allison Manley's leap of 17 feet, two and three-fourth inches, launched another Murray sweep of the top three spots of the long jump.

The Racers will host an invitational meet Saturday at Roy Stewart Stadium.

like the quality of the arena in which games are played, training facilities and housing are in his uppermost thoughts.

Both parties have legitimate arguments. Representatives from Clark Hall, the Student Government Association and the Residence Hall Association, Murray State student organizations, say that athletes shouldn't be provided anything that isn't just as accessible to other students.

But some might say the fact that an athlete who is talented enough to play a sport (basketball, in this case) for a university merits special benefits, like a guaranteed private room.

A source close to the university said the controversy is already having side effects in recruiting.

"There have already been kids who visited here who shunned away from Murray because they didn't know how things would stand when basketball season rolled around," the source said.

So even if the issue is resolved soon — and don't bet on it — some damage to recruiting has apparently already occurred.

Thus far, two players — Eminence High's Mont Sleet and Henderson County's Glen Greene, have signed Ohio Valley Conference letters of intent with the Racers.

Those opposed to the refurbishing didn't waste any time getting started. Stuart Bivin, the Clark Hall Council President, said last week that he had contacted Tom Yeager, a NCAA field investigator, and explained the situation to him.

He (Yeager) said that what is going to be done is clearly a violation," Bivin said.

Contacted by phone at his office at the NCAA headquarters in Shawnee Mission, Kan., Tuesday, Yeager felt that Bivin may not have understood his explanation.

"I told him (Bivin) that, after reading the applicable part of the legislation which speaks of room furnishings, and based on what he told me, it could be a violation," Yeager said.

Legislation was passed in January by the NCAA that, in general, prohibited a student athlete's having access to privileges that other students didn't have.

The NCAA Executive Council will meet April 23 in Denver to set down guidelines for the legislation. After that occurs, Yeager said, it will be easier to judge individual cases. The legislation goes into effect Aug. 1.

"I like to think we're not going to go around with tape measures, trying to find an athlete's room that is a few inches larger," said Yeager, who is one of a dozen or so NCAA field investigators.

Yeager hinted that the fact that Murray's housing plans called for remaining in a building in which other students reside could be a plus for it.

"Many of the universities have separate athletic dormitories," Yeager said. "Based on what I was told, Murray won't have that problem."

Seven-foot beds, items Bivin reported that were on the plans for the basketball rooms, probably won't pose a problem, either, Yeager said. "I think they would probably be judged as legitimate."

Yeager said that the call from Bivin was the first of that nature he had received since the legislation was passed.

Issel's 30 Points Propel Nuggets; Phoenix Wins

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

So who needs George McGinnis?

Apparently not the Denver Nuggets. Center Dan Issel outplayed Los Angeles' mighty Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Tom Boswell contributed 19 points as a starter in place of the injured McGinnis as the Nuggets defeated the Lakers 110-105 Wednesday night in the opening game of their National Basketball Association playoff miniseries.

Denver can wrap up its best-of-three first-round series with a victory at Los Angeles Friday night.

In Wednesday night's other playoff game, the Phoenix Suns beat the Portland Trail Blazers 107-103. The second game of that series will be played in Portland Friday night.

Issel led the Nuggets with a season-high 30 points, including a three-point play that gave Denver its biggest lead at 85-67 with 4:52 left in the third period.

Los Angeles got its fast break going and outscored the Nuggets 23-8 to close within three, but could come no closer as David Thompson hit a free throw and Issel and Charlie Scott contributed baskets to push the lead back up to eight.

Phoenix led by 10 midway through the first period before Portland rallied to close within one at 102-101 with 1:15 to go. A basket by Paul Westphal and a free throw by Walter Davis gave the Suns a four-point lead, and a basket by Portland's Ron Brewer was offset by a basket by Davis in the closing seconds.

Westphal led the Suns with 28 points and Davis had 25, with Davis getting 11 points in the fourth quarter and Westphal 10.

Rookies Ron Brewer and Mychal Thompson were high scorers for Portland with 26 and 22 points, respectively.

Caldwell Leads Brewers; Yankees Clip Baltimore

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

Not only is Mike Caldwell after Ron Guidry's Cy Young Award, it looks like he's out to make people forget Guidry as well.

The Milwaukee left-hander, runnerup to Guidry in last year's Cy Young voting, hurled a five-hitter Tuesday and stretched his string of scoreless innings to 17 as the Brewers blanked the Boston Red Sox 3-0.

Meanwhile, Guidry also was staked to a 3-0 lead but he and

New York relief ace Rich Gossage failed to hold it, although the Yankees rallied to nip the Baltimore Orioles 7-6.

High School Standouts Sign Letters With MSU

Two Kentucky high school basketball standouts have signed national letters of intent with Murray State University, according to Doug Vance, sports information director.

Robin Yount supplied a homer and sacrifice fly as the Brewers won their home opener before a crowd of 54,392.

6-8 Hurler Throws 6 Wild Pitches

Richard Is a Wild Astro

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

At 6-foot-8, J.R. Richard is the tallest player in the major leagues. He also is the "wildest."

Not in the sense of wild and crazy. Richard, despite his size, is quiet and soft spoken. But wild in the sense of wild pitches. Oh, is he wild!

Richard, in fact, established himself as the wildest pitcher in modern baseball history, throwing a record six wild pitches in a 2-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday night.

"Maybe some of them (the six wild pitches) should have been stopped," Richard said after his scatter-armed performance against the two-time National League West champions. "But catching me isn't easy sometimes."

Richard, who set a National League record for right-handers with 303 strikeouts last year, is too strong to hit frequently. He struck out 13 and allowed only six hits.

The six wild pitches broke the modern mark — since 1900 — of five set by Charles Wheatley of Detroit in 1912 and equaled by Larry Cheney of Brooklyn in 1918. John Ryan of the 1876 Louisville team holds the all-time record of 10 wild pitches in one game.

In other National League games, Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh 7-3, San Francisco downed San Diego 4-2, Atlanta topped Cincinnati 6-4, St. Louis whipped the Chicago Cubs 7-0, and Montreal outlasted the New York Mets 3-2 in 14 innings.

Phillies 7, Pirates 3

Pete Rose, who cost the Phillies $3.2 million for a four-year contract during the off-season, began paying dividends against the Pirates. Rose ripped two doubles and a single, walked once and scored once, while advancing two places on baseball's all-time career list. The two doubles lifted Rose's career total to 504, putting him ahead of Charley Gehring for eighth place, and his four at-bats increased his total to 10,210, passing Tris Speaker for eighth place on the all-time list.

Giants 4, Padres 2

John Tamaro, the Giants' No. 3 catcher, was the hero, blasting a two-out, two-run pinch homer in the bottom of the ninth inning, breaking a 2-2 tie. But it was Willie McCovey, the Giants' 41-year-old elder statesman who was given the most applause by the crowd of 56,196, the largest opening-day attendance for the Giants in Candlestick Park history.

McCovey, who singled preceding Tamaro's game-winning shot, received three standing ovations — during the pregame introduction of players, when he came out to pinch hit and when he was removed for a pinch runner. McCovey has three pinch hits in three attempts this year.

Braves 6, Reds 4
Jerry Royster, who lost his shortstop job to Pepe Fria during spring training but now is playing third base because of an injury to Bob Horner, stroked four hits, drove in one run and scored another for Atlanta.

Expos 3, Mets 2, 14 innings
Montreal broke a 2-2 tie in the 14th on Jerry White's pinch single and Andre Dawson's RBI triple.

"It was a good game, I thought," said Montreal Manager Dick Williams.

Eastern Kentucky May Have Lost Its 1980 Indiana Game

RICHMOND, Ky. (AP) — Eastern Kentucky may have lost a scheduled 1980 basketball game with Indiana University after accepting former Hoosier guard Tommy Baker as a transfer student.

Baker was one of three players dropped from the Hoosier squad early last season for disciplinary reasons. Five others were put on probation.

Coach Bobby Knight never announced the reason for the action, but senior Jim Roberson, one of the three dismissed, said later it involved the use of marijuana.

"Our athletic director (Don Combs) told me that Indiana's athletic director (Ralph Floyd) called and said they didn't want the game anymore," said Eastern Kentucky Coach Ed Byhre.

"He said that coach Knight had a policy that he didn't play against schools that have players who transferred from Indiana."

"I don't remember anything about that policy being in the contract we signed with them, but we're not going to fight with them. It's not worth the hassle... We don't have to go up and play Indiana to prove that our program is credible."

SCIENCE FAIR WINNER: Natalie Simpson, 15, a freshman at Murray High School, won the trophy for the best earth science exhibit entered Saturday in the annual Science and Mathematics Fair at Murray State University with this analogous experiment in archeology. The daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Miles Simpson, 1322 Main Street, she also won the gold, first-place medal as the best senior high earth science exhibitor. The project dealt with what could be determined by our culture from a 2,000-year-old "modern" house. Her teacher is Jerry Crider.

SCIENCE FAIR WINNERS: Shannon Gardner, 13, is shown with the exhibit which won for him a bronze, third-place medal Saturday in the annual Science and Mathematics Fair at Murray State University. A student at East Calloway Elementary and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Gardner, Route 8, Murray, he based his project on a study of chromatography.

SCIENCE FAIR ENTRANT: John Warren Nix, 12, a seventh grade student at North Calloway Elementary School, is shown with the exhibit he entered Saturday in the annual Science and Mathematics Fair at Murray State University. The project, dealing with the effect of irrigation in California's San Joaquin Valley, was entered in the junior high individual competition in the geography category. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Nix, Route 2, Murray, and his geography teacher at North Elementary is Steve Payne.

SCIENCE FAIR EXHIBITS: Bill Maddox, 10, left, a fourth grade student at Carter Elementary School, Murray, and Jon Muehleman, 8, a second grade student at Robertson Elementary, are shown with the projects they entered Saturday in the annual Science and Mathematics Fair at Murray State University. Maddox, the son of Dr. and Mrs. William E. Maddox, 1205 Doran Road, won third place in the elementary individual mathematics category with his mathematical system used in art. Jon, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Tom Muehleman, 1620 Magnolia, entered a project dealing with "easy mathematics with popsicle sticks."

Ky. To Use Prisoners In Highway Clean Up-Repairs

By MARIA BRADEN
Associated Press Writer
FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky will begin using prisoners to clean up and repair the state's highways next month under an agreement between the state Transportation and Justice departments.

Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson said Tuesday that prison inmates will do routine highway maintenance jobs and cleanup that the state cannot otherwise afford to do, while Corrections Commissioner David Bland said the program will provide needed job opportunities for prisoners.

"One of the most important tasks of the Bureau of Corrections is to teach inmates the importance of work and the necessity of work to having a stable society," Bland said at a news conference.

He called it a "travesty" that 500 of the 1,830 inmates at the state reformatory in LaGrange have nothing to do.

"We can leave inmates sitting inside the walls and let them while away 24 hours a day, (but) my mamma always told me idle hands were the devil's workshop," Bland said.

"It make a lot more sense if a person can come back to a decent meal and go to bed tired," he said. "One of the most important therapies is to know what it is to work and to be satisfied with a job done."

Inmates from the LaGrange reformatory and the penitentiary at Eddyville will be given a chance to volunteer for a place on one of six road crews. They will be paid from $1 to $1.80 a day for jobs ranging from fence repair and painting guardrails to paving ditches and picking up litter.

"There are a lot of miscellaneous jobs that we don't have the manpower to do now," Grayson said. "We have not had sufficient manpower to keep ahead of repairs, mowing and litter-pickup."

Each 10-man crew will be guarded by three corrections officers, two of them armed. The prisoners will not wear prison clothing and will not be shackled.

The work sites will be within a 50-mile radius of the reformatory or the penitentiary, and prisoners will be transported in specially-equipped Transportation Department vans.

Bland said inmates volunteering for the program would be carefully screened by institution personnel. Inmates are ineligible who are serving time for rape, attempted rape, sodomy, or several other crimes involving personal injury, or who have escaped or attempted to escape within the last five years.

The Fine, Fallible Twelve—3

Efficient Andrew Contrasts With Cautious Philip

EDITOR'S NOTE — This third installment of a five-part Easter series, drawn from the Bible and other ancient Christian manuscripts, focuses on Andrew and Philip.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The strains increased but Andrew stayed steady. He had to maintain his tact and patience despite the clamor. The "way" had been buffeted from the start, but the gusts came thicker. Now, even some aliens — some shaven Greek philosophers — sought audience with Jesus.

They had put the request to another of the 12 apostles who also had a Hellenistic name and connections, the cautious, methodical Philip, that "lover of horses" who had a distinct distaste for obscurities and controversial situations.

"Sir, we wish to see Jesus," the Gentile group had told Philip as a jostling crowd pressed around the heckled leader of the Galilean band outside the Temple porch in Jerusalem, their comments making a murmurous hubbub.

"He is a good man," "No, he is leading people astray," "He has a demon," "Is not this the man whom they seek to kill?" "How is it this man has learning?" "This is really the prophet?" "This is the Christ," "God has visited his people."

Philip, blinking uncertainly, averse to risking decisions in such tense circumstances, edged forward and relayed the Greeks' interest to the level-headed, diplomatic Andrew.

Andrew, whose name meant "manly," was a tall, dignified figure of elongated countenance and full, dark beard. Mild-mannered and openly approachable, he always seemed to be the man in the middle, the intermediary, the arranger. That's how it all had begun, with his handling introductions to Jesus, and that role remained his as the turmoil heightened around them.

To him, their movement had surged with wonder, refreshment and promise, yet it also had been strange, unpredictable, often shocking, arousing officials to furious threats, especially after Jesus and his men had stormed through the Temple's outer court, temporarily clearing it of blaring commerce.

"My house shall be called a house of prayer, but you have made it a den of robbers," Jesus had thundered, driving out the awed traders. Temple guards had sought then to arrest him, but drew back in fear of the people's massive support for him.

Andrew nodded obligingly to the disconcerted, large-eyed Philip and shouldered a path for the Greek delegation through the churning throng. Ah, he sighed, for the peace of daybreak on the sea again. The contrast with the present flickered in him momentarily, recalling the muffled cadences of oars in their rope locks, the soft murmur of Galilean waters against the prow of a fishing skiff.

That fisherman's livelihood had been serene and simple compared to the headlong ferment, the exhilarations, the tidal rush of events around Jesus these past two years.

He had been the first called, the "protokletos" as he's termed in Greek. Actually, as, characteristic of his friendliness, he himself had initiated the meeting. He and apparently Philip had been among listeners to the fiery preacher, John the Baptist, on the Jordan banks when Jesus passed by along the river road.

"Behold the Lamb of God," the grizzled, rough-clad Baptist exclaimed, pointing a bony finger at the departing Jesus, who several weeks earlier had offered himself for baptism.

Intrigued, drawn by some involuntary attraction he could not name, Andrew, with Philip, followed the purposefully striding figure as he moved off toward the sinking sun. It was the 10th hour, after 4 p.m., John 1:39 notes.

They didn't speak and Andrew had no specific inquiry in mind, but still that indefinable demand tugged him along. Abruptly Jesus halted and swung around, looking back at them.

"What do you seek?" His features appeared darkly gaunt beneath his cowl in the fading light, but his voice had an inviting, forceful warmth.

"Rabbi," Andrew groped for a response, "Where are you staying?"

"Come and see," he beckoned. They followed a trail into the Judean uplands to his camp on a high plateau. Although emaciated from long fasting, he spoke with them until well after nightfall.

He had spent 40 days there after his baptism, alone without food among the jackals and serpents, testing himself against the temptations to power of ministering for God. Truly done, it meant inevitable agony from the world's resistance. But "God so loved the world that he gave his only Son that whoever believes in him should not perish but have eternal life."

The two visitors finally left. The next day, Andrew urged his bumptious brother, Simon, to break off his work fixing leads to the fringe of a long, circular fishing net and to go meet the teacher Jesus. Andrew prodded, "We have found the Messiah." The word for the longed-for redeemer had leaped unexpectedly to his lips. Yet he felt it so.

He brought his brother, grumbling at the delayed work, to Jesus and the sun-darkened, thin rabbi gazed at him appraisingly. "So you are Simon, the son of John?" John, or Jonah, meant "dove," a fluttering, timorous creature. But Simon was something else, Jesus saw. A twinkle in his eye, he said, "You shall be called Cephas."

That meant "rock," in the common Aramaic dialect, as did the Greek form of it, "Peter." A man of "granite" instead of a cooling dove, Peter grinned, stroking his red beard. Although Peter became the chief apostle, the courtly, sure Andrew never displayed a trace of jealousy or jousting for position as did some of the others. He seemed at ease with himself.

An obviously gracious, amenable man, readily accessible even to children, Andrew introduced a young boy with a lunch basket to Jesus, amid general anxiety about how to feed 5,000 people who had tracked him to a rural hillside. Adults and youngsters, they had been there three days, far from home villages, without food.

"I have compassion on the crowd," Jesus said. He had put the problem to the businesslike Philip, whose mathematical and organizational bent apparently had made him the commissariat on such occasions. "How are we to buy bread that these people may eat?" Jesus asked him.

Philip, casting his eyes over the crowd and making a quick rough calculation, replied, "Two hundred denarii would not buy enough bread for each of them to get a little." That amounted to a laborer's wages for about seven months' work, and it still would provide just a nibble each for the multitude there.

But the gregarious Andrew, always the social deputy, brought the boy to Jesus, volunteering, "There is a lad here who has five barley loaves and two fishes." The excited boy, eager to share it, opened up his small bundle of snacks. Andrew smiled wanly. "But what are they among so many?"

"Make the people sit down," Jesus directed. He embraced the boy as the crowd settled on the green grass in orderly companies of fives. He offered thanks to God for the few pancake-shaped loaves, about a span in diameter, and pair of pickled mullets. With the help of the boy and his men, he began distributing it.

Strangely, astoundingly, it didn't run out, but became abundance. The people were filled and content with more than enough from the nourishment Jesus provided. It amazed Andrew and the others and Jesus told them later they had misconstrued it, thinking it pertained only to physical fare.

"Are your hearts hardened?" he worried over them. He insisted that somehow the feeding had not been meant just for ordinary appetites but that it conveyed his own deeper nurture of life. "How is it," he asked, "that you fail to perceive that I did not speak about bread?"

Again and again, he pointed to that unseen, unseeable element, some inner need or hunger not satisfied by wonders or bulging baskets, but by faith in his sustenance. "O men of little faith... do you not see?"

It particularly baffled Philip, a prosaically rationalistic man of black hair and fair skin from the cosmopolitan trading port of Bethsaida. He had associations and possibly family ties to Greeks and their systematic logic as implied in his name, and seemed inclined toward a narrowly materialistic view of reality, that only what could be weighed, counted and observed was real.

But Jesus continually acted as if there were something else, something outside the usual measurements and calculations that could nevertheless be experienced and relied on. "Do not labor for the food that perishes but for the food which endures to eternal life."

What did he mean? Philip, acquainted with Greek sciences, favored clear-cut formulas, simple answers and precision. He shared the demands often put to Jesus for "a sign," a demonstration of lordly majesty and might.

Jesus, distressed at such importunings, sighed, "Why does this generation seek a sign? Truly I say to you, no sign shall be given."

Often in cases of apparently miraculous cures, he would credit it not to himself, as would a magician, but rather to some inner strength evoked in others. "Your faith has made you whole."

By Philip's inclinations, Jesus should have capitalized on the episodes, staged exhibitions. But instead, he repeatedly urged the joyously rejuvenated to keep it quiet, often to no avail.

Philip, though wary of argument or complexities but nagged by his wish for some con-

MSU Staff Members

Attend Workshop

Twelve members of the Murray State University Summer Orientation staff attended a Southern Regional Orientation Workshop at the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa April 4-6.

The Murray State staff had been asked by the host school to present three programs to the workshop. Participants are staff members of freshman orientation programs from most of the private and state-supported colleges and universities in the Southern Region of the United States.

The conference is held annually to discuss problems and share ideas concerning the best ways to orient freshmen to their universities.

spacious, concrete display of visible proof, finally had blurted out, "Lord, show us the Father, and we shall be satisfied."

Jesus, there in his last hours of their final supper together, spread his hands in a gesture of dismayed entreaty. "Have I been with you so long and yet you do not know me, Philip?"

The question, the surprised pain on Jesus' face, hurled Philip back, back over the dusty miles, the pleading voices, the tears become laughter, the afflictions turned into vigor, the crutches thrown jubilantly away, the blind seeing the sun, the lives cheered, brightened and lifted up, the high, bold vision of abounding love. Remorse flooded Philip at his brazen request.

"He who has seen me has seen the Father," Jesus said quietly.

Philip swallowed hard, his throat constricted. No, no more did he want some spectacle, some dazzling wizardry. He didn't want it because Jesus didn't want it. No ostentation, no showiness of tricks or marvels, no mere passing sensations only to be dismissed in afteryears as fables. Jesus' identification with human need ran deeper than that, and Philip now realized it.

"Do you not believe that I am in the Father and the Father in me?"

Philip nodded, his eyes filling with tears. Jesus' gaze was like a strong, silent handclasp.

In the ensuing years, the methodical, unimaginative but dedicated Philip taught in Samaria, converted an Ethiopian traveler and preached among philosophers in Athens, the accounts say. Eventually, in an Asian city of Hierapolis devoted to a "great snake" idol, he was martyred, pierced in ankles and thighs, hanged and buried wrapped in papyrus rather than linen.

Andrew, the traditions say, preached in Scythia, a barbarous area north of the Black Sea, now the Armenian part of Russia, and also in Greece where he was scourged with rods by seven lictors and crucified on a X-shaped cross. The impact of that first-called, mediating apostle also was felt in Scotland, of which he is patron saint, as he is of Greece and Russia.

TOMORROW: Judas Iscariot and Three Quiet Ones.

Ranona Gay Ligon Receives Glenda Boone Scholarship

Ranona Gay Ligon, a sophomore of Murray State University from Bardwell, has been named recipient of the $500 Glenda Boone Memorial Scholarship for the 1979-80 school year.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lee Ligon, Route 4, Bardwell, she is a 1977 graduate of Carlisle County High School. Crowned the university's 1978 Homecoming Queen last fall, she was Kentucky's representative to the Orange Bowl Jan. 1 in the Agree All-American Homecoming Queen Program.

An elementary education and English major at Murray State, she won many honors while at Carlisle County High, where she was an honor student and a cheerleader.

Her activities included: service on the yearbook staff; membership in the Beta Club, FBIA, the Science Club, and on the algebra, history and advanced mathematics teams. Her honors were: first place chemistry award in the Region I Science Fair, French and American Government awards; and listing in "Who's Who Among American High School Students."

At Murray State, she has served as a summer orientation counselor, president of the campus chapter of the National Education Association and is the present state president of the same organization.

The scholarship which she has received is named in memory of Mrs. O. B. (Glenda) Boone, Jr., a native of Carmi, Ill., and a 1957 graduate of Murray State. One of Murray's most prominent young ladies, she died unexpectedly on April 7, 1974.

The scholarship primarily is for students concentrating in the area of elementary education and interested in teaching kindergarten or in the lower elementary grades.

The establishment of a kindergarten program in the Murray schools was an important goal of Mrs. Boone's and the program has been attained through the cooperative efforts of the Sigma Department of the Murray Woman's Club of which she was a member.

The award is among 89 and totaling $68,600 in honorary, memorial and alumni scholarships which have been made at the university by the alumni association this year. Of these, 45 and totaling $22,500 are going to high school seniors in the association's Century Club and made possible by $100 contributions made yearly by Century Club members.

All the scholarships will be presented officially April 28 at a reception in the lobby of Ordway Hall and preceding the university's annual alumni banquet in the Student Center, at which the recipients and their parents will be special guests.

Governor Thinks Todd Hollenbach Should Resign

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Former Jefferson County Judge Todd Hollenbach, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, should resign from the state Board of Tax Appeals, according to Gov. Julian Carroll, who appointed him to the post.

Hollenbach, a Louisville lawyer, could not immediately be reached for comment. However, last week he said he saw no conflict between his candidacy and his $22,000-a-year post on the tax board.

Carroll's press secretary, Gary Auxier, said Monday the governor's opinion that Hollenbach should resign from the tax board is based on both legal advice and on Carroll's standing policy.

Auxier cited a 1974 attorney general's opinion that said members of the Kentucky Tax Commission, a predecessor of the Board of Tax Appeals, were covered by a state law that prohibits members of a state board or administration from becoming candidates for public office.

In addition, Carroll's policy has been that appointed state officials should resign if they become political candidates, Auxier said.

Carroll appointed Hollenbach to the board last August.

Beverly Hills Club To Reopen In Ohio

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — The former owners of the Beverly Hills Supper Club, which claimed 165 lives when it burned May 28, 1977, plan to reopen this fall in Ohio.

"We feel this is a growing area and this is where it should be," Richard J. Schilling, Jr. said Tuesday following a meeting with the Butler County Planning Commission.

The commission voted unanimously to recommend a zone change for the new club, but hearings must be held first by the county zoning commission and the Butler County Commissioners which have the final say.

Barring delays, "We should be able to open up sometime in September or October," said Schilling. He said the new club will seat about 1,200 with facilities for dining, dancing and entertainment. However, it will be private, with membership limited, Schilling said.

He declined to elaborate on the plans saying an announcement would be made later.

Schilling, his father, two brothers and the family-owned 4-R Corp. turned over the Southgate, Ky., club property and most of the insurance money totaling $3.01 million in an out-of-court settlement in January.

survivors of the fire.

The Schillings presented architectural plans for the new club to the commission on Tuesday. The club will be located on 20 acres of a 40-acre site on Ohio 747 just north of the Hamilton County line above Springdale, Ohio.

The Schillings noted that most property in the area was commercial in nature. The property is owned by Eunice Hauser, widow of a Butler County physician and her attorneys made the zoning change request.

On Monday, the Union Light, Heat & Power Co. and its insurance firms announced a $5.7 million out-of-court settlement in U.S. District Court, Covington, Ky.

Market Insurance Co. also announced a $928,000 out-of-court settlement. More litigation is planned with manufacturers and other insurance groups concerning the fire disaster, attorneys for the victims said.

The location is near the heavily developed commercial area north of Cincinnati known as Northgate.

Thank God for April 15th.

Yes, that's the day you have to give to your Uncle Sam. But that's also the day that your Father gives you life. It's Easter Sunday.

If there was ever a day that you should be close to your God and fellowman, it is on this day — the day that God showed us his love and his power.

Go to church and worship Him.

We at the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) welcome you to join us this Easter Sunday morning, but, even more important, we hope you will be in some church somewhere.

If you do come to worship with us, we invite you to share communion. It's your personal beliefs that matter, not your church affiliation.

We are going to be joyous on April 15th regardless of what Uncle Sam Says.

Fannin Is Blackburn Scholarship Recipient

Harry Brooke Fannin, a senior at Murray High School, has been named recipient of the $500 Walter Blackburn Memorial Scholarship at Murray State University for the 1979-80 school year.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Talmadge E. Fannin, Route 5, Murray, Harry has maintained a scholastic average of 96.81 percent throughout his four years of high school and ranks second in a graduating class of 155.

At Murray State, he plans to major in chemistry and biology in preparation for a career in environmental chemistry.

While at Murray High, Harry, an Eagle Scout, had two years of outstanding performance on National Educational Development Tests, was selected to represent Calloway County at the State American Private Enterprise Seminar, was given advanced placement in mathematics and social studies classes and was a participant in the talented student program.

He also was a laboratory aide in the school's chemistry department, a member of the school's chemistry scholarship team, a member of the Teen's Who Care Club and served as a junior assistant Scoutmaster and as a Sunday School teacher.

The Blackburn scholarship bears the name of the late dean of the College of Environmental Sciences at Murray State and who died Sept. 20, 1974, after 42 years as a member of the faculty. He became chairman of the Department of Chemistry in 1958, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences in 1968 and dean of the College of Environmental Sciences in 1974.

A native of Marion, Ky., he was awarded the Distinguished Professor Award by the Murray State Alumni Association in 1967, and the building housing the physical and biological science departments at the university is named in his honor.

Fannin's award is among 89 and totaling $68,600 in honorary, memorial and alumni scholarships which have been made at the university by the alumni association this year. Of these, 45 and totaling $22,500 are going to high school seniors in the association's Century Club program and made possible by $100 contributions made yearly by Century Club members.

All the scholarships will be presented officially April 28 at the university's annual alumni banquet on the campus with the recipients and their parents as special guests.

Italian Film 'Amarcord' To Show Twice At MSU

"Amarcord," a 1974 Italian film directed by Federico Fellini, will be shown twice at Murray State University on Thursday, April 12, as the last of eight films in the International Film Festival on the campus for 1978-79.

Showings are scheduled at 2:30 and 7 p.m. in the auditorium of the Student Center. The evening program will consist of a short introduction to the film and a panel discussion immediately following.

Each of the films in the International Film Festival, which is funded in part by a grant from the Kentucky Humanities Council, is presented as a community service and is open to the public at no charge. Each of the eight films originated in a different country.

David Earnest, assistant professor of English, will present the short introduction to "Amarcord" and lead the panel discussion. He will be joined on the panel by Dr. Michael Cohen and Jorie Graham, both also assistant professors of English.

Both Earnest and Graham are fluent in Italian and have traveled widely in Italy. Cohen was the program director for the third film of the festival series — "Wild Strawberries." Starring Magali Noel, Bruno Zanin, and Pupella Maggio, "Amarcord" is a reminiscence of Fellini's youth in a small town in fascist Italy. It combines the concerns of his early, neo-realistic comedies with the style of his later films.

The result is one of Fellini's best and most imaginative films and one of the most popular foreign films ever made. "Amarcord" grossed more than $10 million.

Earnest said his introduction will point out the social, cultural, and political themes of the movie.

"I especially will call attention to the question of authority in provincial Italy: Does authority come from the family, the Church, or the state?" Earnest explained.

Tax Refunds

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The state Revenue Department is behind last year's pace in issuing state income tax refunds, Commissioner Maurice Carpenter says, but overtime work is helping reduce the backlog.

As of Friday, the department had issued 365,295 refunds, 14,880 fewer than on the same date last year.

Carpenter said a six-day computer breakdown in February and the resignation of six processing workers caused the slowdown.

The backlog has been partly eliminated by voluntary overtime work and the hiring of four temporary employees from a computer service, he said.

Readiness Key To Entrance Age

FRANKFORT — Age is not the real key to the new state law on school entrance age — readiness is.

Any way of setting entrance age by month is arbitrary, but educators now look for reading readiness, social readiness, developmental readiness as qualifiers for entering school.

The law changes the entry age to first grade and kindergarten. For the first time, students entering first grade must be six and those entering kindergarten must be five by Sept. 1. The former cut-off date was Dec. 31. The law also provides for parents to petition for their child to be "readiness-tested" for early entrance if his birthday falls between Sept. 1 and Dec. 31.

The readiness test to be given to children for early entrance is based primarily on whether they will be able to read, according to Dr. Donald Van Fleet, head of the state Department of Education's office of planning and research. "This is basically a reading readiness test, because most of learning in the primary grades is based around the ability to read, to learn the alphabet," he said.

The state Board for Elementary and Secondary Education has approved six different readiness tests from which each local school district can select its test.

Van Fleet said, "There are other kinds of readiness that are tested as well. These tests are designed to predict whether or not a child would have a successful experience either in kindergarten or first grade. We think it would be a mistake to enroll a student if we know he isn't ready to enter and is doomed to failure. This is just one indication of whether a child would have a successful experience in first grade or kindergarten."

The lack of readiness shows up early as well as later.

According to Dr. B. Glen Davis, director of the office's research unit, research comparing scores of children starting to school at age six with those of children starting at age five indicates a significant difference in scores. Children starting grade one at age six scored significantly higher than those entering at age five.

"Research shows that the maturation of a child plays a big part in his or her achievement," Davis said. "Besides exceptional cases, a more mature child would probably achieve better."

Van Fleet said there has been considerable concern about the retention rate or failure rate, of students in first grade increasing. "Over the last six years there has been an increase in first graders repeating a grade. It had reached the point where 14 percent of our first grade children are failing," he said. "Research was done that indicated many of the students repeating the first grade were those that were young, with birthdays falling between September and December. They really just weren't ready to enter school."

"We're aware that many younger children are just not making it in the first grade. Sometimes it takes a year or two of school before we realize it's in their best interest not to enter them early. We're also aware that many of these children probably are ready, if they do well on the score and if they are advised. There are many other things you can look at than just the test score. There are developmental patterns, the age the child starts talking, walking or tying his shoes. All of these can help determine if a child is ready."

No Identification Of Bird Disease

By HERBERT SPARROW
Associated Press Writer
FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — While federal officials continue to trace the sale of birds from a Florida facility infected with a deadly bird disease, they say there has been no positive identification of the disease in Kentucky so far.

However, Dr. P.E. Winter, district veterinarian in charge of Kentucky for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, says that birds have been tested in two Kentucky pet stores for New Castle disease. Winter said federal officials are continuing to trace sales of parakeets and cockatiels from the Quality Bird Center in Miami, Fla. — where instances of the disease were confirmed last month. "But there have not been any positive identifications in Kentucky," Winter said Monday.

The foreign strain of New Castle disease affects the respiratory and digestive systems of all birds and poultry and is highly contagious and deadly.

The current outbreak has so far been limited to parakeets and cockatiels (small, crested Australian parrots). Winter said the main concern of agriculture officials is to keep the disease from contaminating commercial poultry.

Winter said the disease is not a health hazard for people who eat poultry or eggs, but in rare instances people handling the birds do suffer minor flu symptoms.

White Collar Criminals Are Found In Kentucky

FRANKFORT — What does a typical white collar criminal look like?

According to testimony given during a legislative study on white collar crime, the average "economic criminal" is a white male, 5'9", 175 pounds, with brown hair and brown eyes.

The white collar criminal may be bilking an elderly couple out of their life savings with a fraudulent home improvement contract, getting contributions from businessmen for phony charity organizations, or stealing money from a bank by use of sophisticated computer knowledge.

All together white collar or economic crime costs the United States more than $40 billion each year as compared to about $4 billion annually lost from all other crimes against property, according to a report presented by Maurice S. Byrne Jr., director of the Louisville-based Economic Crime Unit.

In Jefferson County alone, economic crimes cause a $176 million loss each year, said

Byrne.

Byrne was among witnesses testifying today before the Interim Committee on Judiciary-Statutes. The commission is conducting a white collar crime study mandated by House Resolution 59, passed by the 1978 General Assembly.

The white collar criminal does not face a great risk of being caught, and if he is caught and convicted, chances are slim that the offender will spend time in jail, said Byrne. One reason these criminals may escape punishment is the victims' reluctance to prosecute because of embarrassment, stated the unit report.

The witnesses gave several suggestions for curtailing white collar crime, including increasing the penalties, and making it a felony when a white collar criminal is a repeat offender.

Both Larry Roberts, Commonwealth's Attorney for Fayette County, and Col. Lewis Babb, Kentucky State Police, stated that establishment of an electronic surveillance or wiretapping law in Kentucky would aid in prosecution of white collar crimes.

With built-in guidelines to guard against abuse, wiretap legislation would make available "a great investigative tool for police," said Roberts.

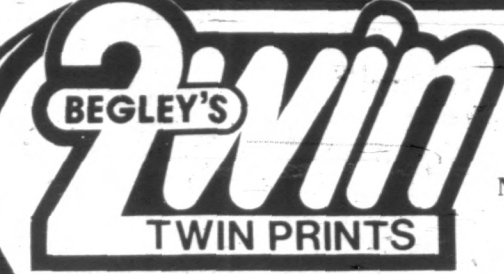

Babb said Kentucky law officers cannot effectively deal with gambling or organized crime without electronic surveillance laws.

In addition, Roberts said Kentucky needs an immunity statute to guarantee that accomplices agreeing to testify can be free from prosecution.

Sen. Gus Sheehan (D-Covington), an attorney and a committee member, said he felt a person should be "convicted on the law" and not by "behind the scenes" tactics such as informant payments and wiretapping. These techniques are "dishonorable," he said.

Jack Bunnell, director of the Division of Securities, Department of Banking and Securities, gave the committee a written statement concerning white collar crimes subject to laws administered by that division.

While penalties for violations of the Kentucky Securities Law are adequate, Bunnell said effective enforcement depends in large part on "public awareness of white collar crime, and the recognition of certain activity as a crime and not just a matter for the civil courts."

Local Schools Hold Pre-School Screening

GIVING TESTS — Mrs. Sue Chaney gives one of the battery of tests to David Gibbs. The tests included screening for development in such areas as cognitive skills, social-emotional skills, gross motor skills, fine motor skills and speech and language skills.

PLAYTIME — An area staffed by Murray State student volunteers was set up for the entertainment of children who were in between tests.

Kaye Peebles

A total of 250 pre-school age children were tested for possible learning disabilities at the recent pre-school screening project conducted jointly by the Murray Independent School District and the Calloway County School District. The federally funded program was sponsored by the West Kentucky Educational Cooperative.

In charge of arrangements for the program were Margaret Franklin, curriculum director of the city schools; Joy Waldrop, guidance counselor with the county schools; and Judy Kennedy, coordinator of the Project for Early Education of Exceptional Children (PEEEEC).

Parents will be notified by mail of the results of the screening within the next two weeks.

Businesses and organizations who contributed to the program were: the West Kentucky Livestock and Exposition Center, Murray-Calloway County Health Department, Sherwin-Williams, Calloway County Schools cafeteria staff, Peoples Bank, Murray Ledger & Times, distributive education classes, WKMS-TV, WNBS and WSJP radio stations.

COLORING — Do you know your colors? While parents registered, children were kept amused with crayons and plenty of paper.

REFRESHMENTS — Cookies and fruit juices were the order of the day for children being screened. Community volunteers manned many of the posts.

VISION TESTS — Personnel from the Calloway County Health Department administered vision tests.
